

Christopher Larkosh, teaches in the Department of Modern and Classical Languages at the University of Connecticut (USA). His present research interests include Italian diaspora studies, South/South transcultural studies, and cultures of translation and multilingualism in the Americas. Recent articles include: 'Levinas, Latin American Thought and the Possibilities of Translational Ethics', appearing in the latest issue of the Canadian translation studies journal TTR; 'On Gramsci, Epistemic Interference and the Possibilities of Sud-Alternity', appearing in Annali d'italianistica 24 (2006): and 'Writing in the Foreign': Migrant Sexuality and Translation of the Self in Manuel Puig's Later Work,' forthcoming in the UK translation studies journal The Translator. He is also currently editing a special issue of TTR entitled "Sexualities in Translation," due to appear next year.

christopher.larkosh@uconn.edu