

Janine Marchessault is a Canada Research Chair in Art, Digital Media and Globalization at York University (Toronto, Canada), where she is the Co-Director of the Future Cinema Lab, a state of the art digital media research facility devoted to ‘new stories for new screens’ www.futurecinema.ca, as well as the Director of the Visible City Project + Archive www.visiblecity.ca which examines how artists are helping to imagine 21st-century cities. She is the author of Marshall McLuhan: Cosmic Media (Sage 2005) and the editor of several collections including Fluid Screens, Expanded Cinema with Susan Lord (University of Toronto Press 2007). She is a founding member of the Public Access Curatorial Collective and the journal Public: Art/Culture/Ideas.