

Since 2007 Scott L. Weiss is Assistant Professor of Communication Arts at St. Francis College, Brooklyn, New York where he teaches courses in rhetoric and media studies. Earlier he worked as an analyst for new media technology. He is author of many positioning papers for emerging business software. He also worked in competitive intelligence for telecom and mobile and wireless technology firms. His research interests include advertising in society, persuasion and propaganda studies and popular music culture.