

Annick Bureau is a new media art critic, researcher and curator. She works and lives in Paris, France. She is the director of Leonardo/Olats, the French branch of Leonardo/Isast (www.olats.org), and as an art critic she writes regularly for the French contemporary art magazine Art Press. In 1999, she was guest lecturer at the School of the Art Institute Chicago/SAIC and, in 2001, at the University of Quebec in Montreal (UQAM), and she currently and teaches at Eesi (European School of Images, art school) in Poitiers. In 2002, she co-edited the book Connexions : art, réseaux, media, published by the Press of Ensba ; she co-organized the International Symposium "Artmedia VIII: From the Aesthetics of Communication to Net art," in Paris and edited the online proceedings published by Leonardo/Olats. In 2003, she organised the Symposium "Visibility - Legibility of Space Art. Art and Zero G.: the Experience of Parabolic Flight" within the @rts Outsider Festival in Paris. In 2004, she published Les Basiques : l'art multimédia, an introductory book on new media arts, on the olats web site. In 2005, she served as the guest editor for "://Brazil. New Media Art in Brazil" for the @rt Outsiders Festival. In 2009, she is co-curator of the @rt Outsiders Festival on the topic "Art of Extreme Environment."